

Recommended Canadian Bikes

This document is a supplement to Selecting the Right Bike and Helmet found at <https://icanshine.org/parents/>.

There are certainly differences in the bikes one can find in Canada vs the U.S. However, for the most part, if bike shops carry the big-name bike brands like we've listed, even if they don't have it in stock, they will likely be able to order it. The bigger differences in bikes you will find come when looking at the larger retail stores. Below are lists of suitable bikes likely found at bike shops and another list for what's likely found at department stores such as Sportchek and Canadian Tire. For suitable bikes found at Walmart and Target, please reference the document noted above as these bikes may be available in Canada as well.

Please speak with your iCan Shine staff to determine if one of these geared bikes would be appropriate for your rider.

Larger Retail Store Bicycles

The table below represent bikes that can be found in Canada at larger retail stores such as Canadian Tire and Sportchek. Keep in mind that there are usually tradeoffs with the lower priced bikes that you will find at larger retail stores. These bicycles are usually of lower quality, less durable, not assembled by experienced bike mechanics, and you will likely not find staff that are very knowledgeable about the bikes they are selling. Not all of the bikes listed below will be found in stock; however, these stores have additional inventories online. Please note that online purchases often require some assembly.

Many of these bikes will not accept hand brakes, especially those with fenders. Thus, without expert advice when shopping for bikes at these locations, it will be difficult to determine whether or not the bike can have a handbrake installed. You will need to take it to your local bike shop for guidance.
